This is a digital copy of a book that was preserved for generations on library shelves before it was carefully scanned by Google as part of a project to make the world's books discoverable online.

It has survived long enough for the copyright to expire and the book to enter the public domain. A public domain book is one that was never subject to copyright or whose legal copyright term has expired. Whether a book is in the public domain may vary country to country. Public domain books are our gateways to the past, representing a wealth of history, culture and knowledge that's often difficult to discover.

Marks, notations and other marginalia present in the original volume will appear in this file - a reminder of this book's long journey from the publisher to a library and finally to you.

PREFACE.

After twelve years of correspondence and research, this work is presented to the members of the Deming Family, as the most complete history and genealogy, thus far published, of the descendants of Hon. John Deming of Wethersfield, Conn. No apologies are offered for the errors and omissions which will undoubtedly be discovered in this volume. It is probable that no genealogical work has been carried on under more discouraging circumstances. Begun as a pastime for the few leisure hours of a busy man, it grew to such proportions that its completion seemed a duty. No professional genealogist was found, who was willing to undertake the work, unless guaranteed unlimited funds for the purpose. The task was therefore assumed by the compiler of this work, at his own expense, supplemented by a large part of his time and labor.

Systematic searches were made among original records of births, deaths, marriages, wills, and land transfers, in most of the towns, churches, and cemeteries of Connecticut, Western Massachusetts, and Eastern New York. Correspondence was opened with members of the family in every state and territory of the Union, and in Canada, necessitating the writing of over 10,000 letters.

Thanks are due to those who, at considerable trouble, supplied private family records, and patiently replied to letters of inquiry. To the many who, through indifference or inability, failed to respond to requests for information, the consequent omission of their personal family records, will perhaps cause a feeling of regret, too late to remedy the loss.

Among the many difficulties which have obstructed the progress of this work, three features are most noticeable:

First: A large number of persons and families bearing the name Deming, are descendants of ancestors of various family names, which in the course of time were changed to Deming. Most frequent among these are descendants of John Damon of Scituate, Mass., a contemporary of John Deming of Wethersfield, Conn.

Second: Several Deming families joined the Shaker communities of Enfield, Conn., and New Lebanon, New York, and owing to the peculiar marriage relations of members of this sect, the line of descent in many cases is broken, and impossible to trace in later generations.

Third: In the last half of the eighteenth century, many younger sons of Connecticut Demings moved into the wilderness of Central New York, far from established towns and churches, and for several generations no public records were kept of births, deaths, and marriages, and private records seldom reveal the New England parentage of the pioneer ancestor. While in many cases the line of descent seems probable, the compiler has refrained from assuming anything which is not based upon well-authenticated records.

Owing to the size of this book, and to keep the cost within the means of all, the female lines have not been continued beyond the record of marriage.

It is a source of regret that this genealogy might not be made complete, and the compiler, realizing his unfitness and lack of time, lays down the work, in the hope that someone more competent, will build upon this foundation, a finished memorial of the family, of which he is proud to be a member.

NOTICE.

The compiler requests that he be informed of any errors in this book and any additions which should be made.

In all cases give full names and full dates, and authorities.

All births, deaths, and marriages will be carefully recorded, and, in time, may be published in a supplemental pamphlet.

EXPLANATION

OF NUMBERS, INDEXES AND ABBREVIATIONS.

To avoid confusion, and to simplify the work, numbers are given only to Deming males, who became heads of families. A number is shown first at the left of the name in its birth record, and is then carried forward, appearing in heavy black figures, where the name reappears at the head of its respective family, and where reference is made back to the parental number.

There are three indexes in the back part of the book, in which appear all names shown in the work, with the pages upon which they are to be found. The first index gives the names of all males named Deming, the second index gives the names of all females whose maiden name was Deming, and the third index gives the names of all families who intermarried with the Deming family. Names are listed alphabetically, and refer to the page, and not to the number.

The following abbreviations appear in the book:

and other abbreviations which need no explanation.

ORIGIN OF THE NAME DEMING.

During the early part of the seventeenth century, in New England, the names Deming, Demmon, Demon, Deman, Dement, Deminge, Demyng, and other variations, appear to have been applied to persons descended from the same ancestor. These names were given, however, to families originating from more than one American source. By far the greater number were descendants of John Deming of Wethersfield; others were from Thomas Deman of Hartford, and in the later records the names are given to descendants of the Damon family of Scituate, and other towns in Eastern Massachusetts. There was also a Thomas Demond of Fairfield, and a John Demmon of Killingsworth, Conn. All of these men appear to have been contemporaries, but no relationship has been established. In spite of the fact that they were among the earliest settlers, and that they bore names which were spelled similarly, no record has been found showing the arrival of any one of them in America, nor do the shipping lists thus far examined, reveal any name which can be traced to them. To attempt a search among the English records, without any idea of locality, seemed an endless, and doubtful task, but a careful examination has been made of the published records of many English churches, and in no case has there been found the name Deming, nor any name which appears to be a variation of the name Deming.

After careful consideration of all facts, the compiler has reached the conclusion that the name Deming is a corruption of some other generic name.

It is noticeable that, during the past three hundred years, the name which has been most often changed to Deming, is the name Damon. There are today in this country many families who spell their name Deming or Demming or Demmon, whose ancestry can be traced to the Damon families which first settled in Eastern Massachusetts. If then, the name Damon (or Dammon, as it is frequently spelled) is the generic name of an English family, the theory is not unreasonable that John Deming of Wethersfield, and perhaps others of his name were descendants of the Dammon family, whose names had been changed before they came to this country.

The Damon Memorial published in 1882, relates the origin of that name, and gives extracts from the parish records of English towns, including St. Giles' Church, Reading, where among many entries of births and deaths of persons named Damon, and Dammon, there appears the name of Demen, evidently a corruption of Damon, and another evidence in support of the theory advanced, that the Demings of America are descendants of the Dammons of England.

According to authorities given in the Damon Memorial, the name Damon or Dammon is in itself a corruption of the name D'Hammond, so that, if our theory is correct, we may trace the origin of the Deming family in the family D'Hammond, "an ancient and illustrious family which has flourished in Surrey, and Buckinghamshire in England, and at Blois, and Cherbourg in France." A further account of this family, and copies of coats-of arms of different branches, are to be found in the Damon Memorial.

No authentic coat-of-arms of the Deming family has been discovered, although specimens of heraldic designs are preserved in some branches of the family, among these the most notable being an old book-plate in the family of Capt. John Deming (No. 157) of Hartford, which has been used as a frontispiece to this work. Nothing is known of its origin, or the significance of its design.

JOHN DEMING

OF WETHERSFIELD, CONN.

AND HIS DESCENDANTS.

JOHN DEMING.

JOHN DEMING, the immigrant ancestor of most of the persons bearing his family name, was one of the early settlers of Wethersfield, Connecticut, where he recorded his homestead in 1641, as a house, a barn, and five acres of land, bounded by High Street, west, the Great Meadow, east, Thomas Standishe's homestead, north, and Richard Crabbe's homestead, south. The dates of his birth, marriage and death, have never been discovered. His wife was HONOR TREAT, daughter of Richard Treat, whose second wife Alice Gaylord, may have been her mother. It has not been proven that Honor was his first and only wife, nor that she was the mother of all of his children, although it is probable. In his will of 13 Feb. 1668, Richard Treat makes the following bequest: "Item: My debts being paid, I give to my loving sons John Demon, and Robert Webster, equally, all the rest of my goods and chattels whatsoever, except Mr. Perkins book, which I give to my son John Demon, and my great bible to my daughter Honor Demon. And that money in my cousin Samuel Welles, his hand, unto my cousin David Deming, son of John Demon senior."* This obscure clause seems to indicate that there was a John Demon senior, as well as John Demon the son-in-law, and suggests the possibility that the father of John Deming of Wethersfield was also named John. This is stated as a fact by Hinman, without giving authority, and the theory is further supported by the statements of the compiler of the Welles Genealogy, and other genealogists. Treat refers to David Deming as his cousin, and indicates the same relationship with Samuel Welles, who is presumably the son of Gov. Thomas Welles, who married Elizabeth Deming, said to have been a sister of John Deming. It would thus appear that the Treats, Welles, and Demings were connected in some way, perhaps before their removal to America. This is the only clew to the parentage of John Deming, and may ultimately lead to its final discovery.

It has been stated by some genealogists that John Deming was among the very first settlers of Wethersfield in 1635, and such is probably the case, but the proof is lacking. His first appearance upon the public records of the colony, after recording his homestead, was in 1642, March 2nd, when he was one of the jury of the "particular court." In 1645, Dec. 1st, he appears among the deputies as Jo. Demon, and in 1656 as John Dement, when as a deputy, he is appointed one of a committee, "to give the best safe advice they can to the Indians." In 1657, May 21st, he appears as a deputy to the General Court, as John Deming, and the following year as John Dement. He was a deputy at various courts until 1667, under various names, the name Deming prevailing at the last. He was also a litigant in several lawsuits. He is one of those named in the famous charter of Connecticut, in which King Charles granted to them and to those who should afterwards become associated with them, the lands of Connecticut, "in free and common socage," and established a colonial government with unusual privileges.

Across the river from Wethersfield, and within its boundaries, lay the "Naubuc Farms," afterwards incorporated into the town of Glastonbury. Here among the first to obtain a lot, was John Deming in the year 1640, his name appearing as John Demion.† It is not at all likely that he ever lived here, for he had a house in Wethersfield the following year, and he sold the land on the east side of the river to Samuel Wyllis before 1668. He also owned land in Eastbury, for which he was taxed in 1673. In 1669 he is listed among the freemen of Wethersfield, as John Deming Senior, together with John Deming Junior, and Jonathan Deming. He bought considerable land in Wethersfield at various times, some of which he gave to his sons before he died.‡ The actual date of his death has never been discovered. He signed a codicil to his will Feb. 3, 1692, and this is the last recorded act of his life. When the public lands were allotted to the inhabitants in 1695, he did not draw a portion.‡ It is probable that he died soon after 1692, although his will was not proved until 21 Nov. 1705, and Savage, and other genealogists have assumed that he lived until that year.

No public record has been found of the births of the children of John Deming, but their names, as far as known, have been taken from his will, which is preserved in the Probate Court of Hartford, and is given herein, in full:

The Will of John Deming Senior of Wethersfield Conn.

This old will is the one glimpse we have of the character of John Deming. It reveals a spirit of piety, of love for his family and his friends, and the companionship of some of the best men in the colony. It shows that he was a man of substance, well supplied with lands, and cattle; that he was equipped to work at some trade, which no doubt proved of service in the little colony when they first settled so far from the older towns on the coast. We would like to know what that trade was, but the records are silent on that point. Under the first will, David was to have the tools of the shop, and David, we know, was a rope-maker; but under the codicil to the will, these tools went to John Deming Junior, and whether he continued in his father's trade or not, we are not informed. At the time this will was written, John Deming must have been over seventy years old, and we may picture him in his last days among his children and grandchildren, reading from his old Geneva bible, or talking with his old friends and neighbors of the trials and hardships of the early days of the settlement. As his wife is not mentioned in his will, it is probable that she died first. The church records of Wethersfield show among the members in 1694 "Jon. Deming Jr's. widow." It is hard to tell to whom this refers, unless to the widow of John Deming the first settler, but it is more probable that some other person is meant. Eunice Standish and her sister Sarah mentioned in the will as cousins, were daughters of Thos. Standish, whose land adjoined Deming's. The connection of this family with Capt. Miles Standish of the Plymouth colony, has not been discovered. It would be interesting to learn how close was the relationship between the Deming and Standish families.

That John Deming was a prominent man in the affairs of the Connecticut Colony, cannot be doubted, and his apparent association by kinship and friendship with those whom we look upon as among the founders of New England, indicates that he was a man of more than ordinary intelligence, and possessed of some education. It is to be hoped that future investigation may bring to light more information than we now have regarding his life in America, and the history of his birth and ancestry in his mother country.

Trumbull speaks of John Deming as one of the fathers of Connecticut,§ and Hinman says of him, that in 1654 he held the office of Constable of Wethersfield, an office which proved that he was in the full confidence of the Governor.† His name frequently appears upon the records of the colony with the prefix "Mr.," a courtesy paid only to men of some prominence. The same authority† states that he was a representative at fifty sessions of the General Court, while in Hollister's roll of deputies, he is credited with nineteen sessions.‡ It is certain that he bore his full share in the upbuilding of the colony, serving his country as the opportunity presented itself, and setting an example of good citizenship, which has born fruit in the loyalty and patriotism of many of his descendants during many generations.

According to Savage, John Deming Jr. was born in 1638, but the authority for this statement is not given. Hinman says that he was born in 1632, and if this earlier date is correct, he must have been born before his father moved to Wethersfield. To distinguish him from his father upon the early records of the town, he is called "Sergeant John Deming," this title indicating that he may have taken part in the Indian wars of the period. In 1662 he became one of the selectmen of the town, and was Representative from Wethersfield to the General Court from 1669 to 1672. In 1694, he and his wife appear among the members of the church at Wethersfield. His son John probably remained with his father on the home farm, while the other sons scattered, and their records are only partly found. Joseph probably moved to Woodstock, Hezekiah went to Farmington, and Jacob to Hartford, while Jonathan lived in the vicinity of Wethersfield. Of Samuel no trace can be found, and it is supposed that he either died young, or moved to a distance. The fate of his daughters Mary and Sarah has not been discovered. Feb. 16, 1712, shortly after his death, his sons John, Joseph, Jonathan, and Hezekiah deed to each other, lands and other property possessed by each of them at the death of "our natural father Mr. John Deming." This indicates that Jacob and Samuel were not living at that time.

According to one authority,† Sergt. John Deming was a "packer" in 1692. As he inherited his father's tools a few years later, it is possible that this was also his father's trade. His brother David, to whom his father first bequeathed his tools, (and later withdrew the gift) is described as a "knacker," which is defined as a maker of small work, or a rope-maker. Perhaps both John and David followed the trade of their father, and the copyist has mistaken the word "knacker" for "packer."

ELIZABETH GILBERT, daughter of Josiah and Elizabeth Gilbert, born 28 March 1654; died 8 Sept. 1714.

The birth-date of Jonathan Deming is determined by the record of his death, which states that he "died suddenly, aged about 61 as he supposed." There is some doubt as to the identity of his first wife, but it is supposed that she was daughter of George Graves. She died in child-bed, at the birth of her daughter Comfort. At the time of his second marriage he was said to be 34 years old, and his wife 20. The date of her death is given in the probate of her will, although other authorities differ. In his will dated 27 Mar. 1696, proved 9 Mar. 1699-1700, he names his wife Elizabeth, and his sons Jonathan, Thomas, Charles, Jacob and Benjamin, giving to the latter the property inherited from Josiah Gilbert, his wife's father. He also names his daughters Sarah Ryley, Comfort, Elusia, Elizabeth, Mary, and Ann, and a son-in-law John Williams, who was perhaps the first husband of his daughter Elusia.

SAMUEL DEMING, (son of John 1) born about 1646 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 6 Apr. 1709 in Wethersfield; married 29 Mar. 1694 SARAH BUCK, daughter of Enoch and Mary (Kirby) Buck, born 1 Apr. 1669.

Mrs. Sarah Deming married 2nd, Capt. Jonathan Churchill.

The record of the death of Samuel Deming upon the town records of Wethersfield, states that he was aged 63 "near out," and thus fixes the year of his birth at about 1646. According to the Kirby Genealogy, Talcott, and other authorities, his wife was Sarah Kirby, daughter of John Kirby of Middletown, the statement being based, probably, upon the fact that she was an heir of John Kirby. The land records of Middletown show that Sarah, widow of Samuel Deming, was one of the heirs of Mary Buck, and joined in deeding land which the latter received from the estate of John Kirby. The same records give a list of the grandchildren of Kirby, which includes Sarah Churchill, who was none other than the former widow of Samuel Deming, as shown by her signature to the distribution of Samuel's estate in 1729. These facts indicate that Mrs. Sarah Deming was the grand-daughter and not the daughter of John Kirby.

DAVID DEMING, (son of John 1) born about 1652 in Wethersfield, Conn., died 4 May 1725† in Boston, aged 73; married 14 Aug. 1678 in Wethersfield, MARY, who died 14 Oct. 1724† in Boston, aged 72.

† Grave-stone Granary Burying Ground, Boston.

David Deming remained in Wethersfield, probably as late as 1690, in which year he received a tract of land there, from his father. In 1699 he appears in Cambridge, Mass., where he is called a "fence-viewer," and in 1700 he was "tythingman." He owned the Brattle estate extending from Brattle Square to Ash Street. Before November 1707, he removed to Boston; at which date he sold the westerly portion of this estate to Andrew Belcher and the easterly portion, including the house, to Rev. Wm. Brattle. In the conveyance he is called "Knacker," which has been defined as "a maker of small work; a rope-maker."‡

In his will dated 23 Apr. 1725, "being sick and weak," he discharges his son David of a debt of one hundred pounds more or less which he had bestowed upon him "at sundry times for his education at Collidge and since." To the three children of David, namely; David, Mercy, and Jonathan, he leaves a bequest in money. To his daughter Martha, wife of Henry Howell he leaves "one hundred pounds and household stuff and moveables." To his grandson Joseph Deming, son of Hannah Deming widow, he leaves "all that my dwelling house which I now dwell in, fronting to Newbury Street, with all the yard garden and premises thereunto belonging." In case of Joseph's death before he comes to the age of 21, then his brother John Deming is to have the property. To his son-in-law Henry Howell (blacksmith) he left the remainder of his estate. The inventory names "15 Seal-skins; 17 Sheep-skins; and leather and tools." It also includes "Benjamin Deming's time valued at 24 pounds, and the Indian boy valued at 60 pounds."§

EBENEZER DEMING, (son of John 1) born in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 2 May 1705, in Wethersfield; married 16 Jul. 1677 in Wethersfield, SARAH.

The birth-date of Ebenezer Deming has never been discovered. It is supposed that he was the youngest son of John Deming, and that he was born about 1659. In 1698 he received a deed of land in Wethersfield from his brother David Deming of Cambridge, and inherited from his father other land in the vicinity. In the record of his marriage the family name of his wife is obliterated, and it has not been discovered from any other source. In the distribution of his estate, his widow and all of his children including his two sons-in-law Talcott and Wright, are named.

JOSEPH DEMING, (son of John 2) born 1 June 1661, in Wethersfield, Conn; died 7 Jan. 1742 in North Woodstock, Conn: married MARY BOWEN, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Johnson) Bowen born 12 Sep. 1666.

The identity of this man as son of Sergeant John Deming of Wethersfield, has not been fully established. His gravestone states that at his death in 1742, he was "about 78." This would make his birth-year 1764, three years later than the recorded birth of Joseph of Wethersfield, a discrepancy which might easily occur. He was a grantor in Woodstock as early as 1697, and in 1728 "being advanced in years," he deeds his property to his son Joseph, "conditional upon the support of myself, and wife Mary."†† According to Hinman, he had a house-lot in Woodstock in 1688, and was a carpenter by occupation.‡‡ There is every reason to believe that he was son of Sergeant John Deming, for the records of Wethersfield fail to show any other fate of Joseph, the son of Sergeant John, who was born 1 June 1661, and no other person of the name Joseph Deming, has been found to correspond to the record of this man. His wife's father came to America from Wales. Of the fate of his son Joseph nothing further has been found. He was living in Woodstock in 1728. A Joseph Deming married in Woodstock 13 Jan. 1774 Prudence Griffin, but the connection with this family is not discovered.

JONATHAN DEMING, (son of John 2) born 12 Feb. 1663 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died between the years 1719 and 1726; married 27 Oct. 1687 in Wethersfield MARTHA BUCK, daughter of Henry and Elizabeth (Churchill) Buck, born 15 Oct. 1667.

Jonathan Deming appears frequently upon the land records of Wethersfield, but aside from transfers of land, little is to be found which throws any light upon his life. The date of his death has not been found, nor any record of the distribution of his estate, but on Apr. 3, 1726 his widow Martha joins with his son Isaac in a deed of land inherited from him.‖ Nov. 11, 1719 he divided by deed to his sons, some of his property, including his home-lot which went to Isaac and Gideon.† This would indicate that he died soon after, and no later transfer appears to have been made by him. His wife was admitted to the Church in Wethersfield 28 Aug. 1696‡ but the date of her death has not been discovered. The names of his children are from the Wethersfield records, with the exception of Grace, whose name is included in the list prepared by Talcott. There has been found no proof of the marriages of his daughters, but it is probable that his daughter Anna married 20 Mar. 1712 Nathaniel Wright of Wethersfield. His daughter Martha may have been that one who married 13 Mar. 1757‡ Joshua Stoddard, and died 22 Sep., 1771.

Jacob Deming settled in Hartford, where the birth of his first child is recorded upon the town records. At the May session of the General Court at Hartford in 1698 he was granted a sum of money as compensation for personal damage, as appears from the following record: "Jacob Demmon having been wounded in the countrey service in firing the great gunes in Hartford (by order from the Govern'r and council when peace was proclaimed) whereby he susteined great losse and dammage, this court orders that he shall receive out of the countrey treasurye the sume of ten pounds cash, to be paid to him by the treasurer." At the October session of the same year "the court gives to Jacob Demmon five pounds more than was formarly given him in consideration of his wounding and dammage in firing the great gune which brake in firing." He evidently recovered from his injuries, for he had two sons born afterwards, but he disappears entirely from the Hartford records after the year 1703, and it is probable that he moved away or died about that time. His wife Elizabeth was living in 1718, and was probably a widow at that time, for the will of her father, Richard Edwards, dated 14 Apr. 1718 bequeaths ten pounds to each of his daughters, with the special provision that Elizabeth is to receive her portion at once, as she may need it for her maintenance. According to some authorities, she married second a Mr. Hinckley, of Kingston, R. I. It has been very difficult to trace the fate of the children of Jacob Deming. His eldest son, Jacob, does not appear upon any records thus far examined, with the exception of the entry of his birth upon the town records of Hartford. His son Lemuel was a hatter, and married Susanna, daughter of Jonathan and Sarah Bunce, who was born in 1704. Lemuel died 10 Dec. 1724, leaving a "wife and child," as appears from his nuncupative will, in which he also refers to his mother and his friend, Timothy Phelps, to each of whom he left a small sum of money. In the inventory of his estate are "200 rackoons skinnes, 31 gallons rum, 51 pounds wool, 2 doz, and 3 blocks, a stone bason, tools, etc." A Timothy Deming of Hartford deeds land upon the east side of the river, between the years 1740 and 1762, and it is supposed that he was the son of Jacob of Hartford. While proof of this is lacking, there is evidence to support the theory, and the line is so continued. Contemporary with this family, there was living in the eastern part of East Hartford a branch of the Damon family, whose names appear upon the records of East Hartford and adjoining towns as Demmon, and sometimes as Deming. To add to the confusion, one of these men was named Timothy Damon (or Deming, as it often appears.) His brother, David Damon, appears upon the East Hartford records as David Deming, who died 1 Apr. 1825, aged 81 yrs. The same record shows the following marriages: Ruth Deming to Ebenezer Hills in 1775, Phebe Deming to Russell Hills in 1783, and Prudence Deming to Samuel (or Solomon) Brewer in 1797. These persons may have been descendants of Jacob Deming, of Hartford, and it is equally possible that they were descendants of the Damon family.

† Weth. Land Rec.
‡ Weth. Church Rec.
‖ Saybrook Town Rec.

Hezekiah Deming was a resident of that part of Wethersfield which was afterwards included in the parish of Newington. Feb. 9, 1725, he sells to Rev. Elisha Williams 104 acres of land in Newington, with "the mansion and buildings." He then settled in Farmington on the north side of the river, where he carried on his trade of a carpenter. In his will of June 10, 1747, he names all of his children except John and Mehitabel, and his estate was worth 1,348 pounds sterling. His son Benjamin was apprenticed to Samuel Deming, of Boston, but later appears in Plainfield, Conn., where he had a wife Esther, who was appointed administratrix of his estate 16 June 1763.

JONATHAN DEMING, (son of Jonathan 3) born 27 Nov. 1661 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 22 June 1727 in Wethersfield; married 1st, about 1681, SARAH BOW, daughter of Alexander and Sarah Bow, of Middletown, born 20 June 1662. He married 2nd, 5 Jan. 1709 ABIGAIL FYLER, daughter of Zerubabel and Experience (Strong) Fyler, born 8 April 1683, died 24 Dec. 1754. Mrs. Abigail Deming married 2nd, Abraham Waterhouse.

Jonathan Deming was a blacksmith. Of his early life little can be found. It is not proven that he was the Jonathan Demon; Jr., who lived in Middletown, and married Sarah Bow, but the theory is supported by many facts. His home was in Stepney Parish, near the Middletown line, and it would seem that the name Jonathan Demon, Jr., which frequently appears upon the Middletown records, must refer to him. These records indicate that he married Sarah Bow in 1681, and that they had a son Daniel born soon after, and baptized 21 August 1681. His wife's father died in 1678, and in Jul. 1681, Jonathan disposes of land which he had received as his wife's portion of the estate of her father. In 1689 he receives a gift of land from Thos. Allen, who had died the year before. At this time he was still called a resident of Middletown. In 1709 Jonathan Deming, then aged forty-eight, is married in Wethersfield to Abigail Fyler. There is nothing on the Wethersfield records to show the history of his life previous to this marriage, and at his death his estate is divided between his two sons and their mother, Abigail. It is evident, therefore, that if he had been married previous to his marriage to Abigail Fyler, his former wife and her children must have died before he did.

His estate was valued at about fifteen hundred pounds, and included fifteen acres of land given to him by the General Court, which had been assigned to his father, "he having been very helpful to his father." This land was afterwards laid out by the widow of Jonathan Deming, Jr., and the other heirs of Jonathan Deming, Sr. brought suit to obtain title to their inherited right, which the Court was obliged to recognize, and the land in controversy was divided among all of the heirs.

daughter of Thomas Williams, born 2 Apr. 1671; died 24 Aug. 1751.

Thomas Deming was a resident of Stepney Parish in Wethersfield. In his will of 1 Mar. 1746 he names the widow and sons of his son Daniel, his son Thomas, and his daughters and sons-in-law. To Thomas he leaves "the saw-mill which is now on the brook." To his grandsons, Giles and Abraham, he leaves "the orchard, the cider-mill, the saw-mill lot, and the dwelling-house and barn." To his daughter Mary he leaves his "great bible" after his wife's decease. The inventory of his estate was 322 pounds.

He married 2nd, 5 Nov. 1713 in Boston, Mass., SARAH MEERS.

Captain Charles Deming was a ship-master, or "mariner," as he is called on the early records. His home was in Needham, near Boston, and he left a valuable estate. In his will of 1 Feb. 1740 he names his children, except Elizabeth, who had perhaps died before that time. Of his son Isaac nothing further has been found, and as he is not named in his mother's will in 1764, it is probable that he died yonng.

Benjamin Deming and his brother Charles married sisters, and in 1730 they, with their wives, deeded land in Wethersfield which they inherited from the estate of Thomas Wickham.‡ In 1736 Benjamin, then called of "Middletown," deeds land in Wethersfield which he inherited from his father Jonathan.‡ He was in Middletown as late as 10 June 1741, and soon after that date moved to Goshen, Conn., where he was a resident in Oct. 1742.§ According to his grandson he was a hatter by trade, but the same authority gives many statements at variance with the public records, stating among other things that "he (Benjamin) was the son of Benjamin who was born in Plymouth, Mass., son of John Deming, who came to America from Wales." After Benjamin moved to Goshen he appears to have lived the life of a farmer, and was elected to the office of Surveyor of Highways in Oct. 1742.§ He deeded land to his sons Wait and Elias in 1758,§ but no mention is made of his other sons on the Goshen records. In September, 1769, he was declared by the selectmen of Goshen to be "impotent by reason of old age," and his children were ordered to support and maintain him. In the distribution of this expense the court ordered payment to be made by Edmund Beach, Jonathan Deming, Prudence Deming, John Wright, Elias Deming and Sarah Riley, "they being the heirs of said Benjamin Deming."§ The Jonathan Deming here named may have been his son, or his grandson, the son of Wait Deming, the latter being dead at this time. The compiler of the history of Goshen assumes that Jonathan was the son of Benjamin, but the other theory seems more probable. This grandson, Jonathan Deming, has left a record, in which he states that Jonathan, son of Benjamin, was killed at Havana during the French war. He also states that his grandfather Benjamin died in 1772, aged 97, thus adding further confusion. The Prudence named above was probably the sister of Jonathan and daughter of Wait. Beach and Wright were sons-in-law, and their wives had probably died before that time.

JACOB DEMING, (son of Jonathan 3) born 20 Dec. 1689 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 2 Apr. 1771 in Farmington, Conn.; married 1st, 3 Nov. 1709 in Wethersfield, DINAH CHURCHILL, daughter of Joseph and Mary Churchill, who died 3 Oct. 1751 in Farmington, aged 70 yrs. He married 2nd, 29 Mar. 1752 in Meriden, Conn., ABIGAIL, widow of Timothy Jerome, and she died 18 Nov. 1771 aged 85 yrs.

Jacob Deming was a large land-owner in Wethersfield, as appears by the frequent transfers, in his name, upon the land records. His first two children were born in Wethersfield, and the others in Farmington. Jan. 17, 1716-7 he was given the "second seat in the square body" of Farmington Church. From 1741 to 1747 he is referred to as living near the Farmington line, and is called a resident of Kensington. In December, 1730 he is a member of the "Prudential Committee" of Kensington Church. The land records show that he had property in Rocky Hill and Newington. According to Hinman he lived in Berlin and New Britain, and it is certain that his first wife is buried in the latter town. His second wife left a considerable estate, including negro slaves, which went by bequest to her children by her first husband, Timothy Jerome. She was a member of the church in Bristol, and was buried there in "Old South Burying Ground."

John Deming moved from Wethersfield to Norwich, where he first bought land in March, 1743. He appears to have owned land also in Preston and Groton. His will was dated 3 Jan. 1763, and proved the 24th of the same month, and his wife's will dated 14 Jan. 1763, was proved the 22nd of the same month, showing that he and his wife died in the same month and year. His first three children were baptized in Wethersfield; the others are supposed to have been born in Preston. To his wife he left one-half of his land and the use of his house; and the other half of his land was bequeathed to his three sons. To his daughter Honour he left fifteen pounds, and to his daughter Lucy a chamber in the house, and the use of the garden, and forty-five pounds.‡ His wife's first husband was Rev. daughter of John and Martha (Graves) Russell, born 2 Mar. 1701; died 7 Sep. 1763 in Wethersfield.

Of Lieut. David Deming little has been found upon the records of Wethersfield, where he lived. Even his military record, from which he gained his title, does not appear to have been worthy of note. As no record of his will, or of the distribution of his estate, appears upon the probate records, the fate of some of his daughters is not proven. It is probable that Mary married Benj. Fisk, of Middletown, and that Elizabeth married Jonathan Welles. Nothing appears upon the Wethersfield records concerning Simeon after his birth, and his fate is uncertain, but he is supposed to have been that Simeon who was in the Revolution, and moved to Saratoga Co:, N. Y.

Samuel Deming was a resident of Wethersfield, where his name frequently appears upon the land records. His will, dated 5 Mar. 1773, proved 21 July 1773, names all of his children except Sarah and Rebecca. He had a son Richard baptized in Feb. 1745, who probably died young. Of his son Samuel, nothing definite has been found, unless he is that Samuel who married 29 Sept. 1774† in West Hartford, Bellisan Belding, and died 22 Dec. 1809 in Newington, Conn. aged 70.‡

William Deming appears frequently upon the land records of Wethersfield, and his children were baptized in the church of that town, but the town and probate records give no information of the births and deaths of any of his family. In 1768 he and all of his sons except Benjamin were paying a poll tax in Wethersfield. In 1774 he appears among the members of Wethersfield Church. There is no record that

Rev. David Deming was educated at Harvard College, from which institution he graduated in 1700. Soon after his marriage he bought land in Middletown, Conn., and there his son David was born. It does not appear that he took charge of the church in Middletown, although it is said that he preached there. It is probable that he moved back to the vicinity of Boston, after a few years, and may have been the pastor of the church at Needham, for at a meeting of the inhabitants of that town 29 Oct. 1712, it was voted "yt ye Town should give Robart Fuller 12 pence a week for his House Rent a year and Roome in his Barn for to lay hay for to keep the rev. Mr. Deming's Cattell, and that Robart Fuller should provide a convenient studdy for Mr. Deming in casse that Robart Fuller should want his littell roome in ye spring of ye year."‡ He was ordained minister of the church

It was here that his son Jonathan was born †, of whom nothing further has been found except that in 1725 he is mentioned in his grandfather's will. After leaving Medway Mr. Deming settled in Lyme, Conn. He is said to have been a tall handsome man, and his wife, who was a few years his senior, was quite small but very much of a lady.‡

Deacon John Deming was one of the founders of the Newington Church Society, and was for many years one of its active supporters. In the records of the parish he frequently appears in positions of trust, and was one of its first deacons.

Little is known of the history of Penuel Deming. He and his wife were members of the church in Pomfret in 1734. Upon the public records his name and that of his son appear sometimes as "Paul Deming," but in 1761 Penuel Deming deeds to Penuel Deming, Jr., a tract of land in Pomfret. In 1767 he appears to deed all of his land in Pomfret to Thomas Tyler, of Boston, and no further trace of him appears on the Pomfret records except his death in 1772, which may have occurred elsewhere and have been recorded in Pomfret. It would seem that the family moved away from this section before Penuel's death.

field all of his life. No record has been found of his marriage or of his death, but on Nov. 23, 1741, his estate was inventoried, and his widow, Lydia, was made administratrix in 1745. As he was assessed for taxes in 1740, it is probable that he died in 1741. A widow Lydia Deming died 21 Dec. 1781, aged 85 years.† She was probably widow of Isaac, but the name of her family has not been discovered. The names of his children are gathered from the distribution of Isaac's estate and other sources. The names of only two, Elias and Abigail, appear upon the baptismal records of the Wethersfield Church. Elias deeded land in Wethersfield to his brother Eleazur in 1758, after which he disappears from the records, and no further trace of him has been found. William Nott and his wife Lydia deed to Anne Deming in 1774 land belonging to the estate of her father, Isaac Deming.‡

TIMOTHY DEMING, (son of Jacob 10) born 26 Mar. 1698 in Hartford, Conn.; married THANKFUL RISLEY, daughter of John and Mary Risley, who died before Sep. 1777.

Timothy Deming was a resident of East Hartford, in which town he first appears in 1736. He had previously been a resident of Glastonbury, where he last appears upon the land records in 1736. In 1754 he is named among the proprietors of Hartford, and as such receives a grant of land from the town, whether by purchase or inheritance is not shown. The names of his children as given below are taken from the distribution of land belonging to the Risleys among the heirs of Thankful (Risley) Deming. The baptisms of Israel and David appear upon the church records of East Hartford, but there is no other record of the birth of any of Timothy's children. It is possible that another son was Elijah Deming, who died in East Hartford in Feb. 1821, aged 65. This Elijah married in East Hartford 8 Apr. 1784 Lucy Risley, and had one son, Seth, who was baptized in East Hartford 30 Apr. 1786, and died in 1839. Seth's wife was named Abigail, and she was born in Glastonbury, and died 6 June 1859, aged 74. Their daughter, Lucy Ann Deming, married 1 Jan. 1847 Horace Cornwall, and died 12 Jul. 1883. This Elijah Deming applied to the State of Connecticut for a pension on account of his services in the Revolution, giving his age in Aug. 1820 as 61 years. In his petition he says: "I am a day-laborer, and for the past few years have peddled sauce in Hartford for my neighbors; have a wife aged 56 years, by trade a weaver, and able to labor about one-half her time. Have one son with a family, who is unable to support me," etc.

Hezekiah Deming was a mason by trade, and seems to have been a resident of various towns in Connecticut. The birth record of all of his children appears upon the town records of Canaan, but it is not certain that they were all born there. His son Daniel appears to have been baptized in Newington.† In 1747 he was called "of Farmington," where in 1755 his wife received land from her father.‡ At his death he was called "of Hartford," but his death is recorded in Canaan. He owned 129 acres of land in Stockbridge, Mass.,§ which with 115 pounds in personal property was all the estate he left. He mentions in his will his "leather apron" and his "land in Poontosuck."‖ His son John seems to have taken the land in Massachusetts, and removed to Stockbridge; his sons Roswell and Hezekiah were owners of land in Canaan in 1761 "on ye greate mountain," but were then called "of Farmington."¶ Hezekiah Deming, Jr., appears to have died unmarried, as no record of him appears, other than his death, and the probate of his will, in which he bequeathed all his property to his brothers and nephews.‖ The youngest child, Hannah, died unmarried, and left a considerable estate, which was distributed by will among her nephews and nieces.‖

Elisha Deming removed to Farmington when a young man, and lived in that part known as Plainfield, where he owned land, and was also owner of "Root's Mills." In 1760 he bought considerable land in Berkshire county, Mass., near Becket and Otis. His son Benjamin moved to Southwick, Mass., where he was a resident in 1802, and was a resident of Russell, Mass., in 1812. Elisha's death was caused by a fall from a horse. Eliakim Deming was a resident of Farmington and Southington. In the Hartford Courant, No. 148, there is a long account of the burning of his house in 1767, at which time he is called an innholder of Farmington. It is said that he lived in Queen Street, Southington, near the end of the town.

Samuel Deming lived in Plainfield, Conn., where he owned Root's Mills, which he inherited from his father.‖ He is probably that Samuel who served in the Revolution in Capt. Edwin Shipman's Co., Col. Webb's Regiment.¶ He owned land in Bristol, and his wife joined the church there in 1793. According to the Hart Genealogy, he had other children besides those named below, including a son named Eliakim, but other authority for the statement is lacking.

Daniel Deming lived in that part of Wethersfield called Stepney, and was the owner of considerable land, some of which he inherited through his mother from his grandfather Filer. At his death his estate was valued at 3871 pounds sterling. In his will of 3 Aug. 1748 he leaves to his widow his "riding mare" and his "great silver cup," and to his son Jonathan his home and house-lot. †A diary kept by his wife, and now in the possession of one of her descendants, records the following account of her husband's death: "My husband departed from his own house March 25, 1748. April the 9th day he sailed out of New London, and died April the 23d day. July 24 news came of his death." His death was caused by consumption.

The name of his wife has been supplied by descendants, but no record of his marriage has been found in Wethersfield or Saybrook. Her parents' names are taken from a book called "One of the Warner Family." In his will, which was probated in Guilford, Conn., 7 Mar. 1780† Charles Deming names his wife Ruth and his children as given below, with the exception of Stephen, who may have died before his father. Thomas Deming Jr., lived in Stepney parish, Wethersfield. His will names all of his children except Ozias, who died before his father. His daughters, Elizabeth and Anna, and his sons moved to Mass. and settled in Berkshire county. His widow may have been that "Widow Elizabeth Deming" whose estate was inventoried 30 May 1764 in Wethersfield. The fate of his daughter Sarah is not determined, but it is supposed that she is the one who married Solomon Griswold. The births of his children (except Elijah) appear on the Wethersfield records. The identity of Elijah is established by the distribution of Thomas' estate, in which Elijah is called the eldest son.

Dr. William Deming was a physician of Needham, Mass. It does not appear that he ever had any children.

Columbia county, N. Y., and settled near the town of Ghent. He was a resident of Hillsdale, in the same county, in 1791, and is said to have finally settled in the adjoining town of Green River, where he died. One of his descendants has a medical book, which belonged to him, and in which he has recorded the births of his two sons and the death of the elder. This corrects the record of the birth of his second son on the town records of Goshen, where he is called the son of "Dr. Wait Deming."† According to Hinman's unpublished manuscript, John Wright called Elias Deming his son. If this be true, Elias may have married a second time, although there has been found no further record to that effect.

He married 2nd, 2 Aug. 1750, ELIZABETH WRIGHT, daughter of‖ Jonathan and Hannah (Rand) Wright, born 14 Feb. 1720; died 11 Oct. 1788.

Lieut. Joseph Deming and his wife became members of the church in Kensington in 1756. He appears to have lived near the New Britain line, as his first wife and son Gideon, who died in 1748, are both buried there in "Christian Lane Burying Ground." He was in service during the French war from Mar. 31 to Nov. 17, 1758.¶ He and his youngest child are buried in Beckleyville. In the inventory of his estate he is called "of Wethersfield." Ensign Jacob Deming was a member of the church in Berlin in 1791, and his death is there recorded, although his grave is in the old burying ground in Beckleyville. As far as is known, he had no children. In his will of July 27, 1791 he names only his wife Lucy, and Israel Deming, of Berlin. This Israel Deming was the son of Abraham Deming, of Rocky Hill, and may have been adopted by Jacob.

MOSES DEMING, (son of Jacob 16) born 8 Sep. 1720 in Farmington, Conn.; died 16 Jan. 1795 in Berlin, Conn.; married in 1746 SARAH CHLOE NORTON, daughter of John and Ann (Thompson) Norton, born 5 June 1726; died 25 Dec. 1809.

Moses Deming and his wife were early members of Berlin Church, and the births of his first two children are recorded there. Later he seems to have been connected with the Kensington church, where some of his children were baptized, while their births were recorded in Farmington. He and his wife were buried in Christian Lane Burying Ground in New Britain. In 1774 he was called "of Worthington," and in 1772 he was taxed in New Britain. He left a considerable estate, which was divided among his children by will.

JOHN DEMING, (son of John 17) born 19 Oct. 1728 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died in Jan. 1790 in Sandisfield, Mass.; married SIBYL (family name unknown.)

John Deming was living in Norwich, Conn., in 1752, but in May 1764 he is called a resident of Wethersfield. He appears to have moved to Salisbury, Conn., and later to Sandisfield, Mass., where he died. His will dated Dec. 14, 1789, was proved Feb. 2, 1790, and names his wife, Sibyl, and his children as given below.‡ He may have been that John Deming, of Sandisfield who enlisted as a private in Capt. Moses Soule's company, Col. John Fellows' regiment, May 8, 1775.§ No public record has been found of the birth of his children, and family records give but little information of time or place. The husbands of his daughters, Judah and Elizabeth, are named in his will, and his daughter Abigail is to have "privilege in the house as long as she remains single."

DANIEL DEMING, (son of John 17) born 1 Dec. 1730 in Wethersfield, Conn.; married 30 Mar. 1757 in Lebanon, Conn., SARAH TISDALE.

Little has been found concerning Daniel Deming. He appears to have lived in or about Norwich, Conn., for in May 1765 his wife joins the church there, and a space was left upon the church books for the record of the baptism of his children. Unfortunately the record was never completed, and we have no proof of the names of his children, if he had any. The date of his death has not been found. He was living in 1763 at the time of the death of his parents, but in 1773 Feb. 21 the Norwich records give the marriage of Thos. Trap, Jr., to Sarah Deming, of Chelsea, and later on in 1814 Nov. 21 appears the death of Mrs. Sarah Trap, aged 84, (i. e., born in 1730.) In the same record appears the name of a Sarah Deming who died 6 Feb. 1822, aged 50, she having joined the church in 1808. This Sarah may have been a child of Daniel.

JABEZ DEMING, (son of John 17) born in 1742; died in Oct. 1799 in Preston, Conn.; married LUCY STODDARD, daughter of Robert and Bathsheba (Rogers) Stoddard, born 10 April 1746;† died 6 May 1830, in Herrick, Penn.

Jabez Deming was a resident of Preston, Conn., where his estate was inventoried 10 Dec. 1799, but was not distributed until later. In 1826 the heirs of Jabez Deming join in a deed, each granting an interest of one-seventh, and are named as follows: John Deming, of the City of New York; Anne, widow of James Rogers; Lucy wife of James Giddings; Lucy, wife of Jabez Deming; Henry Deming, of New York; Polly, wife of Sterry Cook; and the heirs of —— Giles. David Deming was a farmer, who left Wethersfield about 1765, and in that year bought land in Sandisfield, Mass. He appears to have been a man of influence, and was deputy to the Berkshire Co. congress in 1774.‡ He served in the Revolution as a private in Capt. Sam'l Wolcott's Co., Col. John Ashley's regiment of Berkshire militia. He enlisted early in 1777, and served under various officers, and at various times, until 15 Jul. 1778, when he received his discharge.§

He married 2nd, in 1770, in Granville, Mass., MARGARET BURT, daughter of James and Margaret Burt, born 28 Jul. 1748 § in Springfield, Mass.

Capt. Solomon Deming was a man of unusual size and strength, being over six feet tall and built in proportion. He removed early from Wethersfield, and became one of the pioneer settlers in the southern part of Berkshire Co., Mass., where he bought land as early as 1759. He built his new home in the town of Sandisfield, his farm being on the banks of the Farmington river, directly below Hanging Mountain. Before leaving Connecticut he took part in the French war, serving in 1758 in Capt. Josiah Lee's company.‖ When the war of the Revolution broke out, he was one of the first to enlist upon the alarm from Lexington, and was appointed ensign of Capt. Moses Soule's Co. in Col. John Fellows' regiment, which rank he held during the year 1775. He served in several engagements, and was commissioned 6 May 1776 First Lieut. in Capt. Sam'l Walcott's 10th (Sandisfield) Co., 1st Berkshire regiment.¶ This rank he retained in the various companies to which he was assigned. In 1782 he bought 823 acres of land in Granville, Mass., and a few years later gave part of it to his son Solomon. After living an active life, he died at the ripe old age of 95. It is related by his grandson, Charles Deming, of Geneseo, Ill., who remembers him well, that he was a fearless man in those troublous

John Deming remained in Wethersfield until after his father's death, and in 1772 he bought land in Sandisfield, Mass., soon after which time he probably moved to that place. In 1778 he is called John Deming 2nd of Sandisfield. As there were other men of the same name in and about Sandisfield, it is difficult to distinguish him upon the records, but it is probable that he is the John Deming of Sandisfield who served as a private in Capt. Soule's Co., Col. Fellows' regiment, enlisting 8 May 1775, and serving three months.† One of his daughters (perhaps Prudence) married the father of Israel Todd, who married his youngest daughter, Mehitable. His daughter Martha may be the one who married 13 May 1804‡ Lothrop Bartholomew, and died in Jan. 1845, aged 75. (i. e., born 1770.)§

Treat Deming inherited from his father land in Guilford, Conn., and there made his home. It appears, however, from public records that he died in Wethersfield, and it is probable that he returned there as early as 1755, in which year he appears upon the land records as a resident of Wethersfield. A Mary Deming married 17 Feb. 1784†† John Davis in Guilford, and it is supposed that she was Treat's widow.

William Deming, Jr., was called Captain, but his military record has not been ascertained. As none of his descendants is living, it is difficult to learn anything of his life. He had two children, who died in infancy unnamed. His estate was inventoried at $2,168.14 by Timothy Stillman, his administrator, who was also administrator of his son Caleb's estate six years later. The latter left his property to his sister Sarah, his only heir.

But little is known of the life of this man. In 1798 he was living in Wethersfield, and at that time deeds with his brothers, land which they inherited from their mother, Prudence Deming, his share being one-seventh.‡ It has not been Josiah Deming appears to have removed from Wethersfield to Stockbridge late in life, as all his children were baptized in the former place and several of them were buried there. He served in the Revolution in the Lexington Alarm, and was perhaps one of the soldiers from Wethersfield who went to New York in the sloop Ann in 1776.† He and his wife became members of the church in Wethersfield in 1764.

Aaron Deming was in the Revolution in the Lexington Alarm from Wethersfield.‡ After the war he removed to Bennington, Vt., where he was a farmer. He first appears upon the Bennington land records in 1797. In his will of Aug. 14, 1804, which was probated Sep. 3d of the same year, he names his daughters Sabrina, Lucy, Polly and Elizabeth Freligh. His wife probably died before he did. David Deming appears to have been a man of quiet habits. Little is to be found regarding him upon the records of the town where he lived. It is said that his wife was an energetic woman of considerable beauty, who was active in the management of the affairs of her family.

SAMUEL DEMING, (son of Samuel 22) born 22 Sep. 1715 in Boston, Mass.; died 18 Dec. 1767, in Boston, Mass.†

Samuel Deming was a merchant of Boston and lived in Dorchester. He owned land in Middletown, Conn., and elsewhere, and was well-to-do. His brother John was appointed administrator of his estate, and in the distribution of the property his children Samuel and Mary are mentioned, the latter inheriting her late mother's wearing apparel. His son Samuel succeeded to his business, and is probably the one who died in Aug. 1788, and of whom nothing further is known.

His wife's name was Mary, but her maiden family name and dates of birth, marriage and death, have not been discovered.

He married 2nd, 9 Oct. 1788, ELIZABETH SEABURY.§ He married 3d, 25 Jan. 1796, SARAH CUSHING.§

John Deming was a prominent merchant of Boston, and a member of Old South Church. He was an ensign in the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company,‖ and his title of Captain would indicate that he was in command of a company of troops during the Revolution. It is certain that he was closely identified with the Committee of Safety, and in many ways showed his patriotism during the trying times in Boston at the outbreak of the war. His will was dated 21 Apr. 1796 and proved 9 May 1797. It names his wife Sarah and his nephews and nieces, but no children, and it is probable that he never had any. According to the Hartford Courant of 8 Feb. 1796, Sally Cushing was his fifth wife, she being aged 35 and he 75. The same paper celebrates the occasion with the following verse:

> "Fond pair! may each domestic bliss be thine,
> And bright affection sparkle at thy shrine.
> May she the tender office long engage
> To rock the cradle of reposing age."

The young lady's services were not long engaged, for he died within a year. If she was his fifth wife, two of her predecessors are not accounted for, nor has much been found about any of his wives, except Sarah Winslow, who was one of the belles of Boston, and an intimate friend of Mrs. Adams and other well-known ladies. As John Deming left no descendants, it is apparent that no one has preserved the records, if any there were, of his family life and public career.

JOSEPH DEMING, (son of Ebenezer 23) born 24 Jan. 1708 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died about 1783 † in Williamstown, Mass.; married 8 Jan. 1736 in Wethersfield, ELIZABETH FRANCIS, daughter of James and Elizabeth (Howard) Francis, born 18 Jan. 1717 in Wethersfield.

Joseph Deming was a farmer of Wethersfield until 1769, when he bought land in Berkshire Co., Mass., and soon afterwards removed to the new settlement at Williamstown, together with his sons, Aaron and Titus. It is probable that his wife survived him, as she is mentioned in his will of 9 Apr. 1782. The father and his sons were diligent and thrifty, and acquired land from time to time, which was retained by their descendants for three generations. The old house, built by the father soon after he came to Williamstown, was standing until 1876, when it was destroyed by fire. At a point where the farm adjoins Hancock brook there was a small mill privilege, which was utilized by the family for manufacturing purposes for many years.†

Oliver Deming inherited land in Saybrook from his father, but seems to have spent his days in Wethersfield. He left a small estate, of which a double share was to go to his son Lemuel, but the latter admits an indebtedness of 150 pounds to his father, and offers to pay out of his share the funeral expenses, etc., if there is not enough left for that purpose. His wife Lucy probably died in 1801, as her estate of about 100 pounds was administered in Wethersfield by her son-in-law Moody, of Granville, Mass., which place is also called her home at the time of her death.

His will, dated 11 Oct. 1785 names his sons Eliakim, Abel, Eli and Daniel, his daughter Mary, the wife of Nathan Baldwin, and his daughter Charity, wife of Abijah Tryon, who, having married against his will, is to receive her share only in the event that she survive her husband. This same Charity appears upon the church records as having "gone to the Baptists." In 1779 he deeded to his son Abel a part of his home-lot, together with the house thereon which Abel had built. His son Eliakim does not appear on the records except as one of the heirs of his father's estate in 1789, and it is said that he moved to the West at an early date, and all further trace of him has been lost. His son David does not appear in his father's will, and probably died first. His fate has not been discovered.

Moses Deming was a resident of Wethersfield all of his life. In the distribution of his estate appear the names of all of his children and the names of the husbands of his daughters. He left a negro slave, "Asher," who with his bed and chest was valued at ten dollars, and was to go to the widow, and after her death to his only son Moses.

Janna Deming was a farmer living in that part of Wethersfield afterwards known as Newington. In 1741 he was a private in the muster of Newington men drafted to go in the expedition against the West Indies.§ He appears to have attained the rank of Sergeant, and was so called by his friends and neighbors. That he was a man of some influence in the church is shown by the fact that in 1770 he was one of a committee "to seat the meeting-house, and that the men and their wives be seated together."‖ His estate, which inventoried 832 pounds, was distributed by his will among his children.

STEPHEN DEMING. (son of Ephraim 25) born 25 Aug. 1723 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 24 Apr. 1790 in Newington, Conn.; married 29 Jan. 1747 in Newington, HANNAH GOODRICH, daughter of Ephraim and Hannah (Steele) Goodrich, born 15 May 1725; died 16 Dec. 1799.

He and his wife were early identified with the church in Newington, although they do not appear to have taken any prominent part in its management. Stephen left his farm to serve in the patriot army during the Revolution, enlisting in Capt. Stoddard's Co., Col. Moseley's regiment, Conn. troops.§ It is possible that his son Leonard also served in the army, as he mentions in his will "my knapsack" which with the rest of his property he gives to his sisters. Stephen left a small estate, hardly enough to pay his creditors, but his daughters, Silvia and Rosanna, seem to have inherited from some other source, for the former bequeaths property to her sister Rosanna, who finally left an estate of $3,500., part of which she bequeathed to the Ecclesiastical Society of Newington and to its pastor. Stephen Deming was called

Of Waitstill Deming very little is known, except that he was a farmer in Newington. After his death his children became scattered, and two of them, Frederick and Selah, were brought up by their father's cousin, Jedediah Deming. No positive record of the fate of his wife has been found, but the Newington church records show the death on 10 Dec. 1826 of "the relict of —— Deming," aged 87. This entry is supposed to refer to Hannah, widow of Waitstill Deming.

ELISHA DEMING, (son of Josiah 26) born 13 Dec. 1715 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 5 Sep. 1781 in Wethersfield; married 13 Mar. 1745† in Wethersfield, ELIZABETH WILLIAMS, who died 1 Oct. 1779 in Wethersfield.

Elisha Deming seems to have spent his life in Wethersfield, and his name appears frequently upon the land records of that town as a property owner. He inherited land from his uncle, Elisha Steele, which he afterwards willed to his children and grandchildren. His will of 5 Sep. 1781 names his sons, Ephraim and Josiah, and his daughter Prudence, and the children (named Catling) of his daughter Anna. His son Josiah was a soldier of the Revolution who went in the sloop Ann from Wethersfield to join the forces at New York in 1776. Josiah's will in 1786 leaves his property to his sister, Prudence Buck, and the children of his brother Ephraim, and his sister Anna Catling, both deceased.

SOLOMON DEMING, (son of Josiah 26) born 8 Jul. 1722 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died about 1820 in Howard. N. Y.

Solomon Deming lived for a time in Newington, Conn., where the church records show the baptism of his first three children. He next appears in Canaan, Conn., where he had bought land in 1750, and where the church records show the baptism of Lucy, Isaac, Solomon and Mary. There appears also in Canaan the baptism of a daughter Elizabeth, 28 Apr.

1754, which may have been his child, but the records of all of the baptisms are so indistinct that this must be considered doubtful. In 1765 Solomon is a resident of New Canaan, N. Y., and from there gives a quit-claim of his interest in the estate of his father, Josiah. It appears, however, that his family remained for a time in Canaan, Conn., where his son Solomon was baptized in 1767. No further public record of his family has been found, but from records in the possession of his descendants it has been found that he had a son Zebulon, born probably in New Canaan, N. Y., and that he married a second time, and had David and Sarah born also in New Canaan. Nothing has been found to show the name of either wife, nor of their parentage. In 1786 Solomon (then of King's District, N. Y.) petitions the Presbyterian Church of New Canaan for permission to attend service there. In 1776 he is called "pathmaster." In his later years he moved with his son Zebulon to Central New York, and settled where now is the town of Howard, and there he died, and his grave is unmarked.

daughter of Martin and Dorothy (Chester) Kellogg.

Gamaliel Deming was a sergeant in the French War from 2 Apr. to 28 Sep. 1756. He and his wife were admitted to the church at Newington in 1770. The baptismal record of each of his children, with the exception of Elijah, appears upon the Church records of Newington. The birth of Elijah is in the Wethersfield records as before Mary, but no date is given. The parentage of his wife has not been proven, but in 1763 Gamaliel and Rebecca deed land which belonged to Joseph Kellogg.

Ebenezer Deming was a school teacher for forty-six winters, and was also Selectman of his town. He appears to have spent most of his life in Pomfret, where he and his wife joined the church in 1756. He was nick-named "Red-cap" by his scholars. The church and town records of Union, Conn., show that he was living there in 1763-1766.

PENUEL DEMING, (son of Penuel 28) born 19 May 1739 in Pomfret, Conn.; married 27 July 1767 in Pomfret, REBEKAH CHENEY.

Penuel Deming appears frequently upon the records as Paul Deming, but the former name is given at the time of his marriage.‡ How long he remained in Pomfret after his marriage is not known, but in 1785 he appears in the town of Williamstown, Vermont, where he is called Pennel Deming. He appears on the voting register of that town in 1788, and was a member of the Universalist Society there in 1799. In 1801 he and his wife Rebekah deed a parcel of land, and the remainder of the land in May 1803, after which date they disappear from the records. This particular piece of land was offered by the proprietors of the town to the first married woman coming into the town, and it is related that Penuel Deming hauled his wife and a feather bed into the town upon a sled, in order to obtain the land, and so succeeded.

† Births recorded in Pomfret Town Records, and baptisms in Church Records.
‡ Pomfret Town Records.

As Williamstown was chartered in 1781, it is probable that Penuel Deming arrived there about that time. Of his subsequent fate nothing more has been learned, nor the names of any of his children except Lucy, who was born in Williamstown 10 May 1785.†

Eleazur Deming sold his land in Wethersfield in 1764, and moved to New Lebanon, Mass., where he was living in 1768, at which time he deeds to Wm. Woodhouse land in Wethersfield adjoining the estate of his brother Elias, deceased. July 8th, 1777 he enlisted as a private under Capt. Job Woodbridge in a company which marched from Stockbridge, Mass., to Ticonderoga at the time of the evacuation of that fort by the British Troops. He also served under Capt. Silas Goodrich in Col. John Ashley's Reg. at the Battle of Bennington.‖ In his later years he was called Captain. He joined the Shaker Community of New Lebanon, New York, with his wife and children, and the subsequent record of his descendants is difficult to trace.

SOLOMON DEMING, (son of Noadiah 30) born in Wethersfield and died in Berkshire county, Mass.; married 27 Oct. 1748† in Wethersfield, Conn., SARAH KIRKHAM, daughter of Henry and Martha (Burr) Kirkham, born 15 Feb. 1726 in Wethersfield; died in Mar. 1818 in Pittsfield, Mass.

Solomon Deming was a weaver by trade. He bought land in Poontoosuck, (now Pittsfield) Mass. in 1749. In 1815 his widow made a statement that she and her husband came to Stockbridge in 1749 and lived there three years, being afraid to go to Pittsfield on account of the Indians. The town of Pittsfield has erected a monument to her memory which bears this inscription: "Sarah Deming, born at Wethersfield Ct. Feb. 1726; died at Pittsfield, March 1818 aged 92 years."

"This monument is erected by the town of Pittsfield to commemorate the heroism and virtues of the first female settler, and the mother of the first white child born within its limits."

"Surrounded by tribes of hostile Indians, she defended in more than one instance, unaided, the lives and property of the family, and was distinguished for the courageous fortitude with which she bore the dangers and privations of a pioneer life."

It is probable that Solomon Deming was the man, who, under the name Solomon Demmon appears on the muster roll of Capt. Jos. Dwight's Co. at Poontoosuck in 1756.‡

His records are confused with two others of the same name, and it is impossible to distinguish them. His son Noadiah was born in Wethersfield, but the names of the other

Gideon Deming was a farmer, and at an early age removed from Wethersfield to West Hartford, where he lived for fifty years, and where all of his children were born. He owned land in the vicinity of Pittsfield, Mass., but it does not appear that he ever occupied it. DAVID DEMING, (son of Timothy 32) baptized 20 Oct. 1751 in East Hartford, Conn.; died in October 1795 at sea;† married ANNE (Family name unknown).

Like most of the Demings of East Hartford, David Deming was a seaman, and became master of a vessel, from which he received the title of Captain. His wife's family name has not been discovered, but it is possible that it was Abbey, for after Capt. Deming's death his son David Abbey Deming, (a minor) chose Russell Abbey for his guardian. Capt. Deming was among the men who responded to the call for arms at the time of the Lexington Alarm,‡ and undoubtedly took a prominent part in the affairs of the time, since he was called Lieutenant. He died on the passage of his ship from Port au Prince to Hartford, and his widow afterwards married a Deacon Stevens of Litchfield, to which town she moved with her younger children.

JOHN DEMING, (son of Hezekiah 33) born 8 Jan. 1735 in Canaan, Conn.; died 17 Jan.† 1815 in West Stockbridge, Mass.; married ABIA BRYAN,‡ daughter of Augustin and Mary (Thomas) Bryan born in 1743; died 26 Jan. 1801.

Lieut. John Deming was for many years a prominent resident of West Stockbridge, Mass., and yet the public records are strangely deficient as to the names of his children. No record has been found of his marriage or of the birth of any child. His wife, who died in 1801, names in her will, her husband, and her nephews Elijah Hewins and Jehan Taylor, to whom she leaves a request that they erect a stone over the grave of her mother in Canaan. John Deming, Jr. was undoubtedly his son, as the epitaphs of the two men appear upon the same stone and the elder John administered upon the estate of the younger. Lieut. John Deming was an important man in the affairs of his town. He was appointed Surveyor of highways in 1774; Lieutenant of the militia in 1775; Selectman in 1776; Moderator in 1775. At the outbreak of the Revolution, many of the town meetings were held in his house.

ROSWELL DEMING, (son of Hezekiah 33) born 18 Nov. 1737 in Canaan, Conn.; died 23 Nov. 1806 in Canaan, Conn.

Roswell Deming, or as he was frequently called, "Rosel," appears at various times upon the Canaan Land Records. In 1761 he, with his brother Hezekiah bought land "on ye greate mountain" being at that time called "of Farmington." In 1775 they deed land to Peleg Deming but who this Peleg was, or what relationship to the brothers is not shown.

THE STATE HISTORICAL SOCIETY OF WISCONSIN shs 1846

No record of his marriage has been found, and his wife's name is not known, but the births of three of his children are recorded in Canaan, and there also appears the record of his death. The fate of his son Roswell has not been discovered, and no record of him is to be found in Canaan. His daughter appears on the records as "Pede" and "Fide." One account says that she married Solomon Hunt of Huntsville. She may have married twice, for it is certain that she married a Mr. Perry, and left descendants of that name now living in Cornwall Bridge, Conn.†

Little is known concerning Joel Deming. He seems to have spent his life in Canaan. There is a tradition in the family that he was an officer in the Revolution, but no proof of this has been found. Many of his descendants are still living in Canaan, but have been unable or unwilling to supply information. His name appears as grantee in Canaan in 1781,§ and his estate was administered in 1791, showing insolvency.‖

Phinehas Deming enlisted in April 1775 in the Continental army, in Col. Hinman's Regiment, and was discharged 4 Oct. 1775.§ One month later he bought a house in Woodbury, where he resided most of his life. No proof has been found that he was the Phinehas Deming who was born in Cannan in 1750, son of Hezekiah, but as no other Phinehas Deming has been discovered in the records of Connecticut towns, it is assumed that the two persons are identical.

In his will of 16 Mar. 1795 he leaves the old home to his only son Daniel, providing that one room shall be kept for his unmarried daughters as long as they remain single.

He served in the Revolution, and received a pension.† He appears to have had some experience in military affairs before the Revolution, as he was appointed Ensign of the Ninth company, or train-band, in the 6th Reg. of Conn. troops in May 1772, and in May 1774 he was made Lieutenant of the 8th Co. same Reg.‡

No public record of the birth of Elijah Deming has been found, but according to the record furnished by his descendants, he was born in Middletown, Conn. 9 May 1735. Little is known of his life before he appeared in Sandisfield, Mass. It is said that he lived for a time in Enfield, Conn., and he may have become interested in the Shaker doctrines, for it is said that he had a son William, who joined that sect, and it is certain that his brother John was in the society in Hancock, Mass. Among the Shaker death rolls, is the name of William Deming who died in New Lebanon, N. Y. 24 Apr. 1796, ae. 40, and it is probable that he is the one referred to. This William Deming appears to have been a soldier in the Revolution, from Hancock.†

Elijah's daughter Mary, and son Thomas appear upon the birth records of Wethersfield, and it is said that his son Ozias was born in Middletown. A daughter (unnamed) was baptized in Sandisfield in 1772; this may have been his daughter Mary, or Hepsibeth whose name appears only in the private records of the family. He may have lived in Cromwell, Conn. for a time; the church records of that town show the name of REBECCA wife of Elijah in 1765. His marriage to Lucy Sage appears on the Wethersfield Records in 1756, and the town records of Sandisfield record the death of Lucy wife of Capt. Elijah Deming in 1810. The same records show the death of "Naomi wife of Capt. Elijah Deming" 16 May 1822, ae. 68. He was a soldier of the Revolution, being commissioned Captain 6 May 1776, from Sandisfield. He served several years.† It is said that one of his daughters married a Hurlburt, and the other a Frasier.

He married 2nd, 17 Sep. 1804 ELIZABETH NICHOLS, daughter of John Nichols and widow of Mr. Williams, and she died 15 Oct. 1825, ae. 58.

Elizur Deming bought land in Pittsfield, Mass., in 1764, and removed about that time to Pittsfield, where he is called a resident in 1766. He also owned land in Lenox, Great Barrington, and Stockbridge. Most of his life was spent on his farm near Stockbridge and there he died and was buried. He appears frequently upon the land records of Berkshire Co., and must have owned considerable property. If he had any children by his first marriage their names do not appear

JOHN DEMING, (son of Thomas 41) born 19 Apr. 1743 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 5 Jan. 1829 in Hancock, Mass.; married SARAH ROBBINS,† daughter of Nathaniel and Mary Robbins, born 27 May 1745; died in 1813.

John Deming was an early settler in Pittsfield, Mass., where he and his wife were residents in 1768. He had previously lived a short time in Sandisfield, where his son Nathaniel was baptized. His wife joined the church in Pittsfield in 1768, and her son Adin was baptized there the same year, but in Nov. 1789 John appears in a list of dissenters who objected to paying the tax for the support of the Congregational Church and is called a "Shaker."‡ His daughter Sarah was baptized in the church, however, in 1770, but shortly after this, John moved with his family to Hancock, Mass. where he became a member of the Shaker Community. The Shaker records show that he and his family were living in Hancock in 1784 when the community was established there and were among the first to join the society. The same records give the names of his children as shown below. Elizabeth, Adin, and John remained in the community for a time but finally married and left. On account of the peculiar customs of the Shakers, no marriage or birth records are to be found, and the line of descent of those whose ancestors adopted the practices and beliefs of this sect, is almost impossible to trace. John Deming was a soldier of the Revolution, serving in 1777 with the men from Pittsfield, under Lieut. Jas. Hubbard, and again in 1780 under Col. Rossiter.†

Wait Deming was a farmer in Goshen, Conn. He served in the Revolution in Capt. Chapman's Co. 7th Reg. Continental Line, and in Capt. He married 2nd, JANE KELSEY, born 16 May 1762 in Killingsworth, Conn.; died 29 Aug. 1828 in Castleton.

Jonathan Deming was a farmer, and according to various authorities, was a soldier in the Revolution.§ He moved to Castleton, Vt., about 1795 and there worked as a carpenter. His first eight children were born in Goshen, and the last six, in Castleton. The Castleton Church records show that he and his wife were admitted in 1802 with his daughter Hannah. He left a genealogical account of his ancestry, which he says was taken from his father's family bible, but some of the dates do not correspond with public records, and much of the information is traditional. He states that his grandfather, Benjamin Deming, was son of Benjamin Deming born in Plymouth, Mass., and the latter was son of John Deming who emigrated from Wales to America.

JOSEPH DEMING, (son of Joseph 47) born 22 Aug. 1739 in Kensington, Conn.; married 17 Apr. 1760 in Kensington, Conn., BATHSHEBA SAGE.

Joseph Deming Jr. lived in Kensington the first thirty years of his life, and the baptisms of his first four children are there recorded. The land records of Berkshire County, Mass., show that he bought land near Sandisfield in 1760, and again in 1763 a specific piece of land which he deeds in 1764 to his son "Joseph Deming the third," both being called "of Wethersfield."† This last transfer can apply only to his infant son Joseph, and while it seems improbable, no other solution of the problem has been found. In 1769 he is called of Sandisfield, when he deeds land received from his grandfather Hart.‡ In 1774 he is still in Sandisfield and grants land in Worthington Society, Conn., which he inherited from his father as part of his home-lot.§ In 1779 he is called of New Lebanon, N. Y., when he deeds to his half-sisters Mary and Huldah his interest in their mothers estate.§ He may be that Joseph Deming who served in the Revolution as private in Capt. Sam'l Wolcott's Co., Col. Ashly's Reg., for fourteen days under Gen. Fellows in the troops sent to re-inforce the Northern Army.†

While no record has been found of any other children besides those baptized in Kensington, it is probable that he had others.

A Daniel Deming married in Kensington, 21 Dec. 1806, Luami Treat, daughter of Stephen and Grace (Sage) Treat, bap. 10 Dec. 1788.‖ She was from Middletown, and married 2nd, Nathaniel Morgan. There is no proof that this Daniel was son of Joseph, but the relationship is possible.

David Deming probably lived in that part of Wethersfield known as Beckleyville, and there he buried twins 4 Nov. 1766. In 1774 he is living in Williamstown, Mass., and quit-claims to his brother Moses his interest in his father's estate.† His wife Dorcas also appears on the membership rolls of the Williamstown Church.‡ Nothing further could be found of this family, although there are traces of descendants in the northern part of Berkshire County, Mass.

ASAHEL DEMING, (son of Joseph 47) born 27 May 1748 in Kensington, Conn.; married 24 Sep. 1767 in Kensington, HEPSIBETH EDWARDS.

Asahel Deming, who frequently appears on the records as "Asa," is called a resident of Wallingford in 1769 and later, although the baptisms of his children appear on the Kensington Church records. While a resident of Wallingford, he enlisted in Capt. John Couch's Co. organized in Meriden in July 1776, and held the rank of Corporal.§ He was called out in the Lexington Alarm, and took part in the struggles of the patriots in the early part of the Revolution.‖ According to his descendants, his wife was a daughter of Rev. Jonathan Edwards, but in 1772 he and his wife Hepsibeth deed land which they received from their mother Elizabeth Edwards of Middletown.¶ The wife of Rev. Jonathan Edwards was Sarah Pierpont, and they had a daughter Hepsibeth. The marriage of Asahel Deming, and Hepsibeth Edwards is recorded in Kensington Church. These facts seem to refute the family tradition. In 1781 he and his wife are residents of New Lebanon, N. Y.

Moses Deming Jr. seems to have lived in Kensington and Worthington Society in Berlin until late in life. His estate was administered in Berlin, in 1809,† at which time he is described as "late of Whitestown, N. Y." Among his assets was "one share of a sixty-fifth part of Berlin Academy, appraised at ten dollars." In the distribution of his estate in 1813† all of his children are mentioned except Emily, who had probably previously died. Of Alfred no trace has been found. Ralph died about 1825, in which year his estate was administered by Moses Deming of Mentz, N. Y.† It is said that Moses lived near Seneca Lake, N. Benjamin Deming was a resident of Sandisfield, Mass., until 1804, when he removed to New York State, and bought land about two miles south of the famous Avon Springs. Here he established his home overlooking the Genesee Valley, and his house is standing to this day, although recently remodelled by its present owner. It is related that, at the time of his arrival in Avon, his earthly possessions consisted of a horse, a yoke of oxen, and the household goods they could draw, and two dollars in money. By industry and economy he added to his property year by year, until at his death he owned a fine estate of seven hundred acres. The births of his first nine children are recorded in Sandisfield.

died. In 1848 he sailed in the transport "Iowa," carrying Gen. Riley and troops to California, by way of Cape Horn. Arriving in Monterey in April 1849, they were rechartered and sailed to Benicia, where the sailors deserted the ship for the gold mines, and the soldiers went into barracks, leaving Capt. Deming alone with his ship. In a short time he was joined by his sons, who also became interested in mining, while Capt. Deming settled on a farm near Benicia, serving part of the time as a government pilot along the coast.

Col. Simeon Deming moved to Watertown, Ohio, in 1796 bringing with him his wife and four children. He had seen service in the war of the Revolution, having enlisted in 1780, when only 18 years old, and again in 1781 in Capt. Heman Smith's Co. Col. Coller's Reg.† In the allotment of Ohio lands, he and some of his neighbors in Sandisfield, had drawn a tract in what was known as the "Rainbow" allotment. They started on their journey in November, and after a few weeks of hard traveling, they reached Symrill's Ferry, where the party separated, Col. Deming remaining there until the following February, when he started his goods and his family down river in a flat boat, while he went overland with his stock. They reached their destination about the end of the month, and a cabin was soon erected, where they lived until the opening of spring. The following season an epidemic of small-pox spread over that part of the country, and the Deming cabin became a pest-house, in which a large number of the afflicted settlers were confined, and where they were attended by a physician from Virginia.

Col. Deming was a Federalist in politics, and prominent in the Presbyterian Church.

this, he and his family removed to Brunswick, Medina Co., Ohio. At the age of 17 he joined the Continental Army, and served for nine months under Capt. Walcott, in Col. Ashley's Reg.† Upon the muster rolls, he is described as 5 ft. 3 in. in height, and of light complexion. After the war he obtained several hundred acres of land in the Western Reserve in Ohio. It is related that when he and his family emigrated to Ohio, they traveled from Buffalo to Cleveland on the ice, bearing their effects upon sledges. Cleveland at that time numbered about fifty families, and was afflicted with malaria of a most malignant type, owing to the surrounding marshes, and sand-dunes. The locality proving unattractive to the new settlers, Mr. Deming and some of his companions determined to move farther into the interior and so settled in Medina County, where for years they struggled to clear the land, which was overgrown with very heavy timber.

Andrew Deming, or, as he was called, Major Deming owned a farm adjoining his father's in Sandisfield, although in 1804, he was called "of Southfield." He and his wife were admitted to the Sandisfield church in 1816. That same year he and his family removed to Ohio, where his brother Solomon had preceded him. After selling their farms, he and his brother-in-law Fitzstevens, packed their families in one wagon, and their goods in another, and started on their long journey. With two yoke of oxen and a team of horses, it took them six weeks to reach their destination, Brunswick, Medina County, Ohio. At night they slept in farm houses along the way, and by day the younger members of the family took turns in walking. Andrew Deming lived in Brunswick, until about 1836, when he moved to Ashland, Ohio, and there lived with his son Charles. He was a devoted attendant of the Presbyterian Church, and was a strong out-spoken Abolitionist.

David Deming left his home in Sandisfield early in life and moved to Georgia. There is a tradition in the Massachusetts branch that he married a Miss Lusk, but this has not been confirmed. He was a saddler by trade, and conducted quite a large business in the manufacture of saddles, trunks and harness in Madison, Georgia, which he continued up to the time of his death. He is well remembered as a man of high moral character, and possessing the Deming sense of humor in a marked degree. As a Mason he reached prominence, but never held any civil or military office. Attracted by the opening of the Great West, he moved to Ohio, and settled in Tuscarawas County, where he carried on a farm, and at the same time kept a store, acted as post-master, and served as justice-of-the-peace. Rev. Reuben H. Deming was a Methodist preacher, and commenced his work at the age of twenty-one in Lyndon, Vermont, and at St. Johnsbury, and other towns in the vicinity. In 1836 he moved to Wisconsin and settled in a small town which afterwards grew to be the city of Kenosha. Here he carried on a small store in addition to his church work. In business as well as religion he was aggressive, but was not intolerant of other sects. He was a Republican, and a life-long opponent of slavery, against which he preached and lectured continually. After he resigned from the ministry he held various offices in Kenosha: city clerk, county clerk, and justice-of-the-peace. An interesting part of the history of his life is the story of his aid and harborage of runaway slaves before the war.

Aaron Deming moved from Wethersfield, Conn. to Williamstown, Mass. in May 1769, and there, with his father and brother Titus bought 200 acres of land at $1.88 an acre. While they were clearing this land they all lived together in a temporary log house, but soon were able to build a larger house, where the father Joseph lived and died, and which was afterwards occupied by Aaron, who inherited by his father's will, the northern part of the farm. It appears that Aaron was unmarried when he came to Williamstown, and returned to Newington for his wife. He served in the Revolution as a private in Capt. Samuel Clark's Co. Col. Benj. Simond's Reg., enlisted 14 Aug. 1777, discharged 21 Aug. 1777, having in the meantime taken part in the battle 16 Aug. at Wallumsick near Bennington, Vt.† Late in the war he was one of a party to convoy provisions to the army. In his old age his sons Salmon and Joseph managed his farm for him.

Titus Deming was only nine years old when his father took him to Massachusetts, but as soon as he was able to do so, he helped in clearing and working the farm which had become the new home of the family. In later years he took care of the southern half of the farm, and this passed into his possession at the death of his father. He was a private in Capt. Samuel Clark's Co. Col. John Brown's Reg. from 30 June to 21 July 1777, being in the expedition which marched to Ft. Ann.‡ About 1816 he moved to Henrietta, N. Y., where he lived until his death.

Eli Deming was an early settler in Dorset, Vermont, where he was a resident as early as 1783. A careful search in Dorset, Castleton and Champlain, has failed to reveal anything further of his history, or the names of his children, other than the two appearing upon the Wethersfield records before his removal to Vermont.

After the death of his father, Selah Deming was brought up by his cousin Jedediah Deming, after whom he named his first son, and from whom he inherited a tract of land in Newington, which he soon afterwards sold. He did not remain long in Newington, after his marriage, but moved to Northern Vermont, where he bought 200 acres of land in 1795 in the town of Sheldon, and there settled, and spent the remainder of his life. Although his occupation was almost exclusively farming, he early learned the trade of shoe-making, and specimens of his handiwork are still preserved by his descendants.

JOHN DEMING, (son of John 89) born in West Stockbridge, Mass.; died 29 Jul. 1795§ married REBECCA (family name unknown.)

John Deming Jr. was elected "fence-viewer" and "hog-reave" of West Stockbridge, Mass. in 1781. As it was the custom (which still prevails in some New England towns) to elect as hog-reive the man who was latest married in the town, it is probable that John was married shortly before 1781. In 1790 he was elected Constable, and in 1794 he appears as Surveyor of the town. He died the following year at the age of 39, leaving his estate insolvent, and upon the petition of his father Lieut. John Deming, the court allowed bedding for his widow Rebecca. His first two children only, appear on the town records, but the will of his daughter Hannah names her brother John, and sisters Annis Woodin and Polly Newcombe.

He studied medicine under the direction of Dr. John Sears, attending medical lectures at the medical department of Yale College, where he graduated in 1824. Returning to Sharon, he took up his professional career, which lasted for more than half a century, during which time he attained a standing second to none in the State. He was an active member of the State Medical Society, and for years a member of the American Medical Association. In politics he was an old-line Jackson Democrat, and was elected to the Legislature in 1835, 1839, and 1867, and to the Senate in 1853, and 1854. Israel Deming, being the eldest of a large family, and his parents being poor, left his home early in life, and in 1784 appears to be in Great Barrington, Mass. He seems to have been associated in some way with Jacob Deming of Berlin, who mentions him in his will in 1791, having already deeded to his "cousin Israel Deming" certain property two days before his death. From this time on, Israel seems to have lived in that part of Berlin since known as Beckleyville, although the records of Enfield, Conn., show that he bought a house there in 1824, with his son-in-law Silas North. No public record has been found of the birth of any of his children, but from his many transfers of real estate upon the Berlin records, and the distribution of his estate in the Berlin probate court, the names given below, have been collected. He may also have had a son Jacob. His children seem to have lived much of the time in the southern states. Hepzibah died in Virginia; Levi lived for a time in North Carolina; there was a grandson Jacob in Georgia, and William lived in Virginia.

Luther Deming appears to have moved first to Great Barrington, Mass., where he was living in 1796, at which time he and his wife Sarah deed their interest in the estate of Ephraim Crofoot of Berlin, Conn.† Soon after this he moved to Watertown, N. Y., and from there to Mansfield, N. Y. in Cattaraugus County, where he lived in a log house, and cleared a small tract of land. His only other property was a yoke of oxen, two cows, and a few hens. With this scanty help he eked out a livelihood, clearing more land from time to time, and leading the industrious life of a farmer for many years. He never acquired much property, and he and his wife lived a rather solitary life, attending no church, and rarely communicating with their neighbors. His last days were spent with his grandson Thomas.

THOMAS DEMING, (son of Elijah 106) born 21 Jan. 1759 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 17 Feb. 1847 in Sandisfield, Mass.; married ELIZABETH CLARK, daughter of Jonathan and Mary Clark, born in Tolland, Conn.; died 4 Mar. 1861, ae. 77.

According to his grave-stone in New Boston cemetery, Thomas Deming was 67 years old at the time of his death, which would make his birth-year 1780. This would seem to confirm a family tradition that Thomas was much younger than his brother Ozias, born in 1762. The records of Wethersfield show the birth of Thomas, son of Elijah, 21 Jan. 1759, as given above, so it may be that this Thomas died young, and that it is a second son Thomas, who lived in Sandisfield. Descendants in this line claim that their ancestor Thomas was born in Enfield, Conn. He was a farmer, and lived most of his life in that part of Sandisfield, known as New Boston.

JOHN DEMING, (son of John 108) born in Berkshire Co. Mass.; died about 1791 in Otsego Co. N. Y.

The line of descent of this family is not proven, but many indications point to the theory that this John Deming was brother of Col. Adin Deming.

John Deming with his father joined the Shakers of New Lebanon, N. Y., and Hancock, Mass. After remaining with the society for a number of years, he married one of the Shakers and moved to Central New York, and settled in the town of Burlington, Otsego Co. It is said that he died in Edmeston an adjoining town, where his brother Adin was living. His widow married a Mr. Wheaton. Her naidem name has not been discovered. Of his son Roger no record has been found, other than a transfer of land in Hancock, Mass.

ADIN DEMING, (son of John 108) born 3 Aug. 1768 in Pittsfield, Mass.; died 5 June 1847, married 29 Nov. 1791 in Pittsfield, MARTHA PHELPS, daughter of †Joseph, and Sarah (Caldwell) Phelps, born 16 Dec. 1768; died 24 Feb. 184, ae. 79.

Adin Deming's early education in farming was among the Shakers, with which society his father had become identified. As the boy's father claimed the use of his time until he should become of age, young Adin did not strike out for himself until he was twenty years old, when he bought from his father his remaining time for twenty dollars, and then hired out for four years at sixty dollars a year. In 1792 he removed with his young wife to Edmeston, Otsego Co. N. Y., performing the journey with an ox team. Aside from his oxen, his worldly goods consisted of two beds, a few cooking and farming utensils, two hundred pounds of pork, and eighteen dollars. With these small beginnings, and with the pluck and perseverance of himself and his wife, he gradually accumulated a fortune, so that before his death he owned nearly 2,000 acres of land, and his estate was valued at ovef $75,000.00. A few years before his death he deeded all or his property to his children, except a few legacies to be paid at his death. His remarkable success as a farmer, brought forth a sketch of his life in "The American Rural Home," in which however, it is erroneously stated that his father was Nathaniel Deming.

Wait Deming was a resident of Ghent N. Y., where he frequently appears upon the land records from 1824 to 1833. The names of his seven children appear in the distribution of his estate and of the estate of his widow Elsie. It is claimed by a descendant, that his first wife was Mary Buckingham, and that she was the mother of George born in 1819. The only public record of the birth of his children is that of his last two, which appears on the records of the Lutheran church in Ghent, it being stated that James is son of "Wait and Ellen," and William, son of "Wait and Else." Elsie had a grandson named Thompkins Eckert, the son of a deceased daughter, who shared in her estate,‡ so it is possible that she was a widow when she married Wait Deming, and her maiden name may have been other than Stupplebein. She may have been daughter of Michael H., and Rebecca (Turner) Stupplebein. It is said that Wait was a shoemaker.

John Jay Deming was a resident of Castleton, Vermont, where his first three children were born, and where he appears on the land records as late as 1824. Before this date he must have established himself in Detroit, Mich., for the records of the First Presbyterian Church of that city, show him to have been an elder at its organization in 1818. In 1828 he became Treasurer of the Detroit Presbytery. About 1835 he moved to Mishawaka, Ind., and in 1855 he removed to California, where he established himself in Yolo County, and there died at his place known as Deming's Ranch.

Little is known of Barzillai Deming, and, as he left no descendants, no family record has preserved the events of his life. It would appear that he removed to New York State, and died there before the year 1819, for the records of the church in Middletown, Conn., state that in 1819 "Widow Sophia Deming is admitted to this church, the church where she joined on removing to New York State some years since, having dissolved and she having no certificate of dismissal." Nothing has been found to show that he had any children.

Joseph Deming moved to Boonville, N. Y., about 1800, and was keeping a tavern there in 1815, soon after which time he died and his widow married again, and the family moved away. His marriage to Azubah Turner appears on the church records of Wethersfield, and she was appointed at his death, the guardian of his children. According to the records preserved in the family, Joseph had a former wife who was the mother of his first child Horace, born in Waterford, Conn. No record of this marriage is to be found in Wethersfield, or Waterford.

Captain Joseph Deming led the life of a New England farmer, who took his father's farm and went on with the work as it came to his hand; a work which required perseverance and good management to make it successful in that hard hilly country. His command of a local military company gave him the title of "Captain Jo", by which he was familiarly known in his neighborhood. After the death of his wife he sold his farm and bought a house in town where he lived with his daughter, Mrs. Middlebrook, until his death, which occurred through a distressing accident. In yoking a pair of steers, one of them broke away and the yoke swung around upon the neck of the other steer, and gave Capt. Deming a blow upon his head, which proved almost instantly fatal. It is said of him that he was a handsome man of tall erect figure, and regular features, and, in his uniform he made a striking appearance.

Before he reached his majority, he purchased for one hundred dollars a release from his obligations as a minor, and emigrated to the wilderness of Niagara Co.,N.Y., near the present city of Lockport, where in partnership with Arthur Poole he bought and cleared a quarter section of land. In 1825 he met in West Groton, Cayuga Co., his future wife, who had come to the vicinity to teach school. They were married the same year, and in 1830 sold their home and moved to Barrington, Yates Co., N. Y., where Mr. Deming bought 250 acres, and continued his life of a farmer for many years, until failing health, and misfortunes compelled him to sell his property, and retire from active life.

MOSES DEMING, (son of Titus 154) born 16 Mar. 1804 in Williamstown, Mass.; died 19 June 1870 in Salt Lake City, Utah; married 1st, 27 Mar. 1834 in New Lebanon, N. Y., HENRIETTA WHITMAN, daughter of Richard and Lydia (Bower) Whitman.

Moses Deming with his wife moved from Williamstown to Michigan, and for many years his relatives heard nothing from him. It was finally learned that he had joined the Mormons, and emigrated with them to Utah. It is said that he had a daughter by his first wife, who died young, and that his wife soon followed her. Whether or not his affiliation with the Mormons occurred before her death, is not known. After diligent inquiries in Salt Lake City, the following facts have been learned: Moses Deming did not come to Utah with the first colony of Mormons, but was a member of the band called the "Seventies," which left Nauvoo, Ill., in 1848. He acquired some prominence in the Mormon church of "Latter Day Saints", and possessed considerable property, owning at his death about twelve acres in the city limits. He had three wives, including the one he married in Massachusetts who may have died before he married his second wife. By his first wife he had one child, and by the second wife three children, all of whom are dead. By his third wife, who is still living in Salt Lake City, he had six children, three of whom are living; Granville and Frank in Coalville, Utah, and Miles in Salt Lake City. His second wife was Maria Kitter, but his third wife, who came from England, refuses to give her family name.

Capt. Josiah Deming was also a sea-faring man like his father, and died on the passage from Savannah. He was in the company of Wethersfield troops which went to New York in the sloop Ann in 1776, with his father. He and his wife joined the church in Wethersfield in 1785, at which time he was called Josiah 3rd. After his death his body was brought back to Wethersfield and there buried. His son-in-law Samuel Bowles was the founder of the Springfield Republican.

AMOS DEMING, (son of John 157) born 16 Oct. 1792 in Wethersfield, Conn.; died 7 Aug. 1882 in Savoy, Mass.; married 15 Feb. 1816 PRECILLA SEARS, daughter of Seth and ——— (Hurd) Sears, born 13 Sep. 1798 in Denis, Mass.; died 26 Sep. 1889 in Savoy.

Amos Deming went with his parents to East Hartford, where he soon entered the cabinet-shop of his brother-in-law Simeon Deming. After learning his trade, he moved to Savoy, Mass., where his father was then living. In 1823 he was baptized into the First Baptist Church at Savoy, and his religious convictions led him to prepare for the ministry. On May 27, 1834, he was ordained pastor of the Second Baptist Church in Savoy, and later served as pastor of the churches at Adams, Florida, Windsor, 1st Church at Savoy, Hinsdale, Brewster, Cheshire, and East Windsor, all in Massachusetts. As a preacher he was earnest yet unpretending; as a pastor and friend he was faithful and kind; as a man his character was pure and his life that of a Christian. He was fond of expressing himself in verse, and left a number of poems, one of which is inserted by request. It was written in his old age, at a time when he thought he was about to die:

THE SHADOWS DIM THE SETTING SUN, THE LIGHT PRECEDES ITS RISING.

We are drawing near the fountain
That issues from the throne;
Where Jesus sits in glory,
His ransomed ones to own.

There runs through this deep fountain
A stream of crimson glow;
Where all the robes of Heaven were washed
As white as wool or snow.

He turned his spotless robe aside,
Thus laid his bosom bare;
And showed the names of every Tribe
Of Israel written there.

Thus truly may the scripture word,
To hopeful souls apply;
My witness is in Heaven,
My Record is on high.

This truth confirms my souls delight
That grace is freely given;
That Gospel christians here on earth,
Will be the saved in Heaven.

My only hope for joys to come,
Is faith in that pure blood;
Which stained the cross where Jesus hung,
Uniting me with God.

Donald Deming was one of those Connecticut farmers who were among the early settlers of Ohio, and there he established his home near the present town of Rootstown, where he resided until the time of his wife's death, when he sold his farm and moved to Clinton, Ind., and soon afterwards moved to Bloomington, Iowa, where he died. His youth was spent working on his father's farm, but he found time to gain a common school education. When, at the age of 21, he started out in the world for himself, all his possessions were tied up in a red silk handkerchief, and he journeyed on foot from his old home to Cleveland. After he had located his land, he walked back to his father's home to obtain the aid his father had promised him, and returned to Ohio with a white horse and a green wagon loaded with farm implements, and other things which his father had given him.

married 2nd, 7 Sep. 1814 MIRANDA NEWELL, who died 8 June 1830 ae. 38.

John Deming, the head of this family, appears on the records of West Stockbridge and elsewhere as John C. Deming, and it is said that his middle name was "Carleton". He was taxed in West Stockbridge, Mass., from 1813 to 1823. He held the office of Surveyor and Tax-collector in 1818, and was on the school committee in 1820. He was elected Selectman in 1821. In 1824 he was defeated for representative, and this disappointment seems to have driven him from the town, for his name no longer appears upon the records, and in 1829 he was living in Albany, N. Y., where he was elected an alderman that year.‡ He seems to have removed to New York City, and probably died there before 1835, in which year the death of his daughter Jane occurred, and was noted in an Albany newspaper, as "Jane daughter of John C. Deming, late of New York City." As his father died when he was very young, he was brought up by his grandfather Lieut. John Deming. His early life was spent in farming, but he seems to have devoted much of his time to public offices.

Chester M. Deming resided for fifty-three years on the farm in South Canaan, where he was born, and in 1873 moved to another farm which he purchased on West Main St., in the village of Canaan. He was a great lover of music, especially of sacred music, and had a good tenor voice which he used for many years as leader of the choir of the Congregational church in his native town. He was an enthusiastic Republican in politics, and took a deep interest in the affairs of the party in his state. His death was caused by an unfortunate accident. While crossing a railroad track between two cars, he stepped upon the connecting link, and the train being backed at that moment, his foot was caught between the buffers, and badly lacerated. At his advanced age the shock was too much for him, and as amputation was not advisable his life could not be saved.†

unable to attend school, and at the time of his first marriage he could neither read nor write, but his wife taught him, and he soon overcame this defect in his education. At the time of his second marriage he had his own shop where he worked at carriage blacksmithing. In 1845 he removed to Springfield, Mass., where he worked in the Armory at gun-welding, but on account of ill-health, he was obliged to seek out-door employment, and in 1852 he removed to Columbia, South Carolina, and worked in the Armory at that place, and later, was engaged in business on his own account, but his health still continuing poor, he bought land in Iowa in 1855, and started in an emigrant wagon, with his family, for his new home. He was taken sick on the way and died near the city of Alton, Ills. His family returned to Connecticut in December of the same year. Mr. Deming was a Whig in politics, and attended the Methodist church, but was not a member of any religious denomination. He left the reputation of an honest man and a good workman.

ELIZUR DEMING, (son of Elijah 218) born 4 Mar. 1798 in Great Barrington, Mass.; died 22 Feb. 1855 in Lafayette, Ind.; married 7 Jul. 1818 HESTER CARPENTER, who was born 23 Oct. 1799, in Wyoming, Penn.; died 17 Aug. 1872 in Lafayette, Ind.

Elizur Deming was a graduate of the University of Pennsylvania, and moved to Lafayette, Ind., in 1830, and there began the practice of medicine, which became his life work. He was a strong man physically and mentally, and devoted to his profession, in which he had a very large practice, which often taxed his energies to their utmost, especially during an epidemic of cholera in 1832, when it is said that for weeks he worked without any rest. He was a strong Abolitionist, and often assisted run-away slaves. His support of this cause, often subjected him to attacks from its enemies. At one time he was proposed for the office of Governor of Indiana, but declined to run. In the winter time he delivered lectures in a college in St. Louis, and on one occasion was called home by the illness of his wife, and his train being caught in a snow blockade, he parted with his overcoat to protect a woman and her child from the cold. This last act of benevolence cost him his life, and he died from the effects of a cold which he caught at the time. The colored people of the town at their own request were permitted to accompany his funeral procession.

At the age of 17, James Lewis Deming left school, and became a clerk in a music store. As this establishment was in the same building as the local theater, he became acquainted with some of the actors who were employed there, and in that way, as he very aptly expressed it, he "stumbled and fell on the stage". Beginning at the lowest round of the ladder, he gained the top of his profession by sheer force of rare ability. His first appearance was in Troy N. Y., in 1855 and he played in various cities until 1869, when he was engaged by Mr. Augustin Daly for his New York company, and from this date until the year of his death he remained with the same organization and under Mr. Daly's management. Under the stage name of "James Lewis" he attained a fine reputation as an actor, both on the American stage and also in London. He was a small, nervous, quick-witted man of rare personal charms, and exceptional culture. At his death, he left a modest fortune. He never had any children.

Hon. Henry C. Deming, the well-known orator and public debater, graduated from Yale College in 1836, and went from there to Harvard Law School, where he graduated in 1839. He then opened an office in New York City, but devoted himself to literature more than to the practice of law. In 1847 he moved to Hartford, Conn., where he made another start in the practice of law, but finding politics more to his taste, he began a career which ultimately made him one of the prominent men of his day. He became successively Member of the State Legislature and of the State Senate; Mayor of Hartford in 1854 and in subsequent years; Member of Congress from Connecticut in 1863 and for four succeeding years; and Collector of Internal Revenue, which office he held at the time of his death. In 1862 he was appointed Colonel of the Twelfth Regiment Connecticut Volunteers, and with his regiment accompanied Gen. Butler to New Orleans, and upon the surrender of that city, he was appointed provisional mayor, and filled that office until Jan. 1863, when he resigned and returned to his home, Col. Deming was the author of several works, but his fame rests largely upon his remarkable oratorical powers.

Shortly after his marriage he moved west and settled in Cincinnati, Ohio, where he engaged in the book and printing business, and the publishing of a newspaper called "The Chronicle," which was issued weekly, and had a large circulation. This was continued for about eight years, during which time Mr. Deming published also several other periodicals. The death of his partner Mr. Robbins left the burden of the business upon Mr. Deming's shoulders at a time when the failure of Southern subscribers depressed the income to such an extent that it was impossible to continue. After using all of his estate in the liquidation of debts, many of which could not legally be enforced against him, Mr. Deming was obliged to close up and settle as best he could, leaving himself almost penniless. Although shattered in health, and bankrupt, he did not lose courage, but moved into Darke County, Ohio, where by toil and industry he was able to support and educate his children.†

Abel Deming first appears in Cincinnatus, Cortland county, New York, where some of his children were born. He lived also in Solon, N. Y., and finally settled in Andover, N. Judge Deming is an attorney by profession, and has been active in politics for a number of years. After finishing school, he was for two years teacher of Latin, Greek and Philosophy in Waterford Academy. During the Civil war, he served his country as Gunners Mate, and Acting Gunner in the Navy, and has been Commander of his G. A. R. post several terms. In 1867 he was elected County Attorney, and in 1870 and 1874 was elected Judge. In 1876 he was one of the Republican Presidential Electors, and was nominated on the Republican ticket for Lieut. Governor of Kentucky. At various times he was a candidate upon the Republican ticket for state offices and for Congress, and although defeated by reason of the large Democratic majorities in his state, he has served his party with credit. His son William graduated from Allegheny College, Meadville, Penn., in 1890, as president of his class, and received the degree of Master of Arts. He studied law and was admitted to the Kentucky bar, in 1893, but in the meantime had taken up journalism, and soon became editor and manager of the Warren (Ohio) Tribune, of which paper he is still owner. In 1901 he removed to Cheyenne, Wyoming, where he became editor and manager of the Wyoming Daily Tribune. He was elected to the Wyoming Legislature in 1902, and is a member, and secretary of the Wyoming Commission to the St. Louis Exposition. He is also a member of the Wyoming Industrial Association, and secretary of the Wyoming Forestry Association, and is a writer and public speaker of ability.

DANIEL DEMING, born 28 Mar. 1762; died 28 Oct. 1848 in Stockton, Chautauqua county, New York.

Thus far it has been impossible to find the connection between this Daniel Deming and other branches of the family. The date of his birth, and the names and birth-dates of his children are taken from his bible. The name of his wife is unknown. According to family tradition he was born in Connecticut, and lived for a time in Saratoga county, N. Y., from whence he removed to Chautauqua county, where he appears as a Revolutionary pensioner, aged 77 in 1840. His daughter Susanna was a member of the church in Broadalbine, N. Y., in 1817. He is perhaps the Daniel Deming who was a private in Capt. Elijah Deming's company which served 41 days in 1778, among the reinforcements sent to Albany.‡ He was an attendant of the Baptist or Christian Church.
